29 DINER

Description

The 29 Diner is a classic, post-World War II roadside restaurant. It has a barrel vault roofline and is finished in metal and glass block. The streamlined exterior features an eye-catching striped awning, accent lighting, and an eye-catching neon sign. The interior is largely intact and maintains the traditional diner floor plan. A service counter, with floor-mounted stools, dominates the space. There is a preparation area against the back wall and a row of booths along the front wall that provides additional seating for customers.

Genres

Perfect for period pieces set in the 1940s-1960s, or any story where hometown folks need a place to gather or the characters are on the road.

Permits

This venue is private property. Contact the owner for information about access and fees. The City of Fairfax requires a film & media production notice and permit document to be approved prior to filming. Needs outlined in the document will determine costs, which will be communicated following an intake conversation when the permit is issued. Incentives may be available.
